All at Sea—

CITY business men making their annual report to the federal government this week on unemployment tax are anxiously scanning the printed sheet for exemptions.

The exemptions are:

- (a.) Services performed outside the United States.
  - (b.) Agricultural labor.
  - (c.) Domestic service.
  - (d.) Service of an officer or member of the crew of a vessel on the navigable waters of the United States—
- Ah, thought your writer—in (d.) The Star has got something: "Officer or member of the crew of a vessel on navigable waters."
- That would be J. T. Bowden, our field circulation manager.

To Recognize Conquest of Ethiopia—Britain and France Aroused

LONDON, Eng.—(AP)—Announcement in Rome Thursday that Rumania's new Nationalist anti-semitic government would recognize the Italian conquest of Ethiopia increased grave concern in London and Paris over the apparent spreading influence of the Rome-Berlin axis.

Evidence of the serious views taken by the British and French diplomatic allies of the policies of the new Rumanian government—especially its anti-Jews tendencies—was seen in mild representations by the London and Paris governments.

Lola Mae Alford Is Killed on Hot Springs-Malvern Highway

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—(AP)—Lola Mae Alford, six, was fatally injured Wednesday when she was struck by an automobile after alighting from a school bus on the Malvern highway about 12 miles west of here in Hot Springs county.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Roy Erney of Garland county quoted Doris Raymond, Dodden, negro woman employed by the state education extension service with headquarters in Hot Springs, as saying the child ran in front of her automobile.

Sheriff Tom Fisher and Prosecuting Attorney William Glynn, of Malvern, came here and questioned the driver. She was released on $500 bond and ordered to appear before the Hot Springs county grand jury January 17.

Cheap Houses Are Built by F. S. A.

Six-Room House Is Built for Less Than $400 Per Room

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—If what this country needs is more houses for less money, the Farm Security Administration can build them.

The trouble with farm security houses is that they are not broken in to city ways and probably would cause zoning authorities to hold up their hands in horror. But the houses are being built. Farmers are living in them—and they don't look so bad.

Of course they are not Park avenue houses. Maybe they wouldn't even look so good on that choice lot in Donkey Corners, Iowa, but if anybody says they are not houses, they would be awfully mistaken.

An Arkansas House
When the Wagner housing bill and other housing bills, most of them are strictly Wagnerian, were before congress, there was a lot of talk about the impossibility of building worthy houses for less than $1,000 a room. The idea seemed to be that no self-respecting stenographer or steel-peddler would live in a house costing less than $1,000 a room. And the fact of the matter appears to be that it is hard to build much of a house to fit city conditions under that figure.

Yet in Altshimer, Arkansas, the Farm Security Administration (FSA) hereafter built nice 6-room house, painted it white and put a roof over it for less than $400 a room. Altshimer is a village in the Arkansas cotton country and has an chamber of commerce, so far as we have heard, nor a zoning commission, or a Rotary club. It is, however, listed in the postal guide.

The Altshimer house has no indoor plumbing of consequence and the children will have to bathe in a tub of water heated on the kitchen range. But the place will shelter a substantial farm family until papa can install some of the plumbing in the year of

Control of Crop Disease Is Sought

President Asks Funds to Stop Infestations in This Section

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Control and prevention of the spread of cotton and citrus fruit infestations into this country from Mexico was sought through appropriations totaling $1,150,745 included Wednesday in the president's budget recommendations.

He recommended $680,000 for enforcement of foreign plant quarantines at ports of entry on the border and to prevent the movement of cotton and cotton seed from Mexico to the United States.

He recommended also appropriation of $296,800 for control and prevention of the spread of the pink bollworm, including establishment of such cotton free areas as may be necessary to stamp out any infestation, and for necessary surveys and control operations in Mexico in cooperation with Mexican authorities.

Appropriation of $160,460 was recommended for control and prevention of spread of the Mexican fruit fly, which infests citrus fruits, and $13,485 for citrus canker eradication, all work to be done in co-operation with Mexican officials.

The president recommended appropriation of $12,500 for operation of a livestock experiments and demonstrations at Big Springs, Texas. These recommendations represented no change in appropriations for the projects during the current fiscal year.

ANTI-LYNCH BILL UP

Behind Smoking Barrages, Jap Tanks Drive on Into China

Slowly but steadily encroaching upon more and more of China's territory, Japan's relentless advance is characterized by the ruthless, clanking drive of this tank corps into Nanking. The tanks carried "map-up" squads to clear out snipers, and followed the destructive artillery barrage turned upon the capital. Smoke from shelled and burning buildings hangs darkly over the road. Meanwhile Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek resigned as head of China's nationalist government and political prisoners, mostly Communists, were released on bail.

Turning again to their northern objectives after the fall of Nanking, Japanese war machine rumbled on through rich Shantung province, capturing Tsinan, imperiling foreigners at Tsinan, and increasing the vast area under Japanese control, shown on the above map. Military operations in the Hongkong-Canton area were forecast as Japan struck at China's most easily available source of munitions.

Senate Birthday Party for Glass

Glass, Shy Little Man of 80, Is Covered With Confusion

WASHINGTON.—The senate delayed a message from the president for nearly an hour Wednesday to hold a birthday party for its oldest and smallest member, Carter Glass of Virginia, who was 80 Wednesday. The little white-thatched Virginian vanished in a cloakroom when his colleague, Senator Byrd of Virginia, began a speech praising him.

Associates said Glass explained: "It's easier to endure criticism than praise." Byrd termed Glass "one of the really great men whom Virginia has sent to this body"—a man whose "character is carved out of unblemished granite." Republicans and Democrats who have served in both the house and senate with the Virginian recounted his career as "father of the Federal Reserve act," secretary of the Treasury, and 17 years as a senator.

They noted that, lacking a college degree, Glass had received honors from "universities and colleges" throughout the land.

Senator McKellar (Dem., Tenn.) said "no bill that ever passed through Congress received more accurate and detailed attention" than the Federal Reserve act handled by Glass.

The Republican leader, Senator McNary (Ore.), said Glass "heart is as green and bounteous as the rich meadowlands of the Old Dominion state." Other senators wished Glass "another 80 years" and Vice President Garner, gavel in hand, announced a unanimous senate resolution of congratulations.

After all the fuss was over, Glass, a bit, misty-eyed, returned to his desk on the floor and listened to reading of the president's budget message.

Livestock Show Is Headed by Barton

Plans Made for State-Wide Exhibition of Arkansas Cattle

LITTLE ROCK.—Administrative officers and units of the Arkansas Livestock Show were elected at a meeting at the Pyramid building Wednesday. Col. T. H. Barton of El Dorado was elected president. Raymond J. Higgins of Little Rock was elected secretary.

Incorporation of the Livestock Show of cattle, horses, mules, hogs, sheep, and poultry next fall at a place and a date not chosen were outlined. Winners of county shows, which the organization plans to encourage and develop, will be entered in the state show.

A statewide livestock show will stimulate growers to establish and maintain disease-free herds to improve herds by use of registered males in breeding, and to adopt more economical feeding methods, it was said by John V. Nevitt of St. Louis, Mo., dairy development agent of the Missouri Pacific Lines.

The system of holding a central livestock show, to which winners of district shows are sent, his improved stock in other states and counties, Mr. Nevitt said.

CHAPTER I

Along the ocean drive at Palm Beach, America's winter playground for the rich and near-rich, the line of automobiles stretched for nearly a mile approaching the Tudor-styled castle of Constance Corby, the richest girl in the world.

A corps of special patrolmen was on guard, besides the traditional men in liveries and a dozen private detectives. A flock of newspaper men and photographers were gathered outside the tall wrought-iron gate. The formal gardens and velvet terraces were flanked in softly tinted light, an enormous marquee especially for dancing, overlooked the silver-edged surf beating against white sands shimmering in moonlight of rivaling splendor. Rare blues and orchids, brought by plane, filled the spacious rooms from baseboard to ceiling. Three orchestras had been engaged. Forty caterers occupied the mammoth kitchens preparing a feast fit for a beachhead king. The supply of champagne was unlimited. For tonight the formal announcement of the betrothal of "The Million Dollar Princess" was to be given out to the world.

Outside the richly appointed bathroom, with its stoken marble tub and gold-plated fixtures, three persons hovered anxiously listening for every word and sound from within.

"You really should be getting dressed, Miss Connie," Gibbs, the personal maid, English, amiable, sardonic, warned.

"Indeed you should!" Mrs. Perry, the head housekeeper, fat, flustered and forty, urged with sympathetic sounding words.

"You should indeed," Uncle Tippy added his bit. "That is if you intend to appear at your own party, my dear." Luck Tippy was Connie's favorite guardian. He never, all well, anything to upset her too much, not even his niece's whims, which were at times, to say the least, likely to be upsetting.

There was silence for a minute while the three waited as though holding one long suspended breath. Then "But I'm not so sure I want to appear," a low throaty voice murmured from the other side of the door, which was locked.

"But you can't do that!" Mrs. Perry threw up plump arms in horror. Remember Rodney was waiting, too. Your fiance. Such a splendid young man!"

"What I should have done long ago," Uncle Tippy sighed, "was to have given you a good sound spanking. Hope Brandon will have sense enough when he takes you off my hands."

"If Rodney ever beats me, I shall leave him," the cool, lovely voice stated with emphasis.

"Talking about divorce before the banns are even spoken! 'Tis a bad omen!" Mrs. Perry moaned.

"With you so way?" This time the voice was not quite so soft or musical; there was a loud splash in accompaniment.

"I expect we'd better," Uncle Tippy decided, muttering to the others. He had not been a favorite guardian for 20 years without having learned when to give in.

Connie listened to the footsteps dying away. The frown between her prettily arched brows vanished, her lips curved in a little victorious smile. What good voice were seventy-some odd millions if she could not be late to her own announcement party?

Not that she had any reason to be late. Except that the water was warm and fragrant and soothing and suddenly she was sick to the soul of parties and mounds and butlers and guests. As for Rodney, an anxious moment or two and he'd be off for that young man.

"This should be the happiest day of my life, I suppose," Connie thought, a few minutes

China Claims to Be Prepared for Prolonged Japanese War

Chinese Say They Have Sufficient Money—80 Army Divisions to Take Field This Spring

By the Associated Press

China, Japan and Spain made long-range preparations for their respective wars Thursday.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek directed the mobilization of men, money and munitions which by spring was expected to put 80 full divisions in the field against Japan.

Chinese officials insisted their government had enough money and arms for a long war.

The Japanese government planned new measures to control magazine and newspaper writing, and public speaking, for the duration of the war with China.

Slot-Machine Business Booms in War Zone

SHANGHAI.—(AP)—There is at least one American in China who is accumulating a small fortune as a result of Sino-Japanese hostilities in the Shanghai area. He is John Riley, "slot-machine king" of the French concession, who claims Denver, Colo., as his home town.

Riley has more than 50 slot-machines installed in as many bars and cabarets in the French concession, which are patronized by American, British, French and Indian sailors, sailors and marines, who have been concentrated in Shanghai since the trouble started on August 13.

Riley estimates that his machines relieve these soldiers and sailors of more than $12,000 monthly.

Crazy Talk—Smart Guy
HERE's strange language from a spokesman of the national government—Chairman Marriner Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board testifying before a senate committee Tuesday, as reported by the Associated Press:
 "He opposed repeal of the undistributed profits tax as 'the most deflationary thing that could be done'. It was unsound, he said, to contend that repeal would be a good thing because it would permit corporations to reduce debt and lay away reserves against times of stress. No reduction of private debt is desirable, he said, adding that 'we have never experienced an expansion of business activity without an expansion of debt.'"
 Mr. Eccles talks fine in theory—but how about the man whose name is on the note for that private debt, and who is personally responsible?
 The federal government, according to Mr. Roosevelt, will owe close to 39 billion dollars at the end of the next fiscal year, and that doesn't worry Mr. Eccles at all, because Mr. Eccles doesn't have it to pay personally.

But if the debt was, say, $39,000, and it was a personal note to secure some private company's debt, and Mr. Eccles' name was on that note as endorser, then Mr. Eccles would change his whistle. He would owe no man worth anything to his country can sleep well under the shadow of a debt which threatens to become perpetual. To deny that is to dispute human nature itself. Mr. Eccles talks like an educated fool.
 What business is complaining of in the undistributed profits tax is simply this: That the government, assuming every corporation is rich, today makes the corporation pay out all its earnings in dividends so the stockholders can be taxed as they receive these earnings; and if the earnings aren't so distributed, but are kept by the corporation, then the corporation is taxed from one-sixth to one-third of the amount retained.
 The complaint of American business, then, is simply this: That most corporations are not rich but are actually in debt; that most corporations are not big, but are little—and that average-sized and little businesses have been caught with a debt on their hands when the panic began, have had to pay the government from 15 to 30 per cent tax on money they saved up to pay off a debt.
 But if they didn't do so—if they went ahead and paid out dividends before paying their just debts—you yourself wouldn't waste time declaring the proprietors ought to be in jail . . . and you would be perfectly right.

 The trouble with Mr. Roosevelt and his billions-dazzled advisors is that they have been dealing in generalities so long, and so long have been accustomed to running government at a loss and operating with an ever-climbing debt that they now recommend private business do the same thing.
 In the last analysis Mr. Eccles' statement simply means that the government not only forces on private thrift but in dealing with small businesses actually offers them a bonus of 15 to 30 per cent in tax-relief if they will just keep on being in debt.
 This is a madman's logic—but a politician's procedure.
 Having bludgeoned emergency taxes out of city business the last couple of years, at a rate and for a purpose that couldn't go on forever without being passed to the people in new high prices, the government now faces the question: Is government or business going to be "deflated"?
 It's going to be one or the other—and it is Mr. Eccles' problem as an administration spokesman to find the book and the page that justifies his official position.
 If he talks crazy he acts as wisely as could be expected under the circumstances.

The Family Doctor

T. M. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.
 By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
 Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Vaccination as Disease Preventive Still Uncertain Value in Some Cases

This is the second of two articles in which Dr. Fishben discusses vaccination for prevention of disease.
 (No. 416)
 Diseases in which the use of preventive methods is not fully established as of definite value include particularly scarlet fever, whooping cough, and infantile paralysis.
 Experiments made on scarlet fever, particularly by Doctors George F. and Gladys H. Dick have shown that the method has usefulness. The Dick test gives an idea of the resistance of the individual to the disease. However, the Dick test at its best is not as certain in relation to scarlet fever as the Schick test in diphtheria.
 While many children have been inoculated against scarlet fever to give them immunity to the disease, not enough is known as to the duration of immunity or its effectiveness to recommend inoculation as a routine.
 There may be, however, certain people who should be inoculated. For example, the nurses and the internes in hospitals for infectious diseases may find it best to be protected.
 Whooping cough also is a disease in which medicine still searches for a certain method of prevention. Today's vaccines are far superior, in preparation and power to prevent or shorten the duration of the disease, to preparations used in previous years.
 However, information on the effectiveness of these preparations under various conditions is not such as to suggest that every child be given these injections. No one knows how long the resistance to whooping cough lasts. A single attack of the disease is not a preventive because second attacks of whooping cough are not infrequent. On the other hand, a second attack of diphtheria is rare.
 Finally, whooping cough occurs in young children and in infants, and the ability to produce resistance in such young infants is not as good as in the older child.
 It was thought until recently that vaccine had been discovered that would be useful in preventing infantile paralysis. It is known now that these vaccines were not safe, nor was there enough evidence collected to be really certain that they were useful. At present, no one would recommend the inoculation of children against infantile paralysis by the use of vaccines of the living or of devitalized viruses of this disease.

 The so-called method of blocking the nose by means of various chemical solutions is not to be considered a method of raising resistance. Such resistance is a function of the blood and of the tissues. Blocking the nose is merely setting up a mechanical obstruction against the virus, which apparently in the majority of cases enters by the way of the nerves which pass from the upper part of the nose. Until much more is known about this method of mechanical blocking, its routine use on a large scale does not appear to be warranted.
A Book a Day
 By Bruce Catton
 Full-Length Novel Told in Woodcuts.
 One of the novelties of the dying year's publishing season—and a rather pleasing novelty, too—is Lynd Ward's new novel, "Vertigo" (Random House, $3).
 Here is a story without words—a full-length novel told in woodcuts. I have not counted them, but there must be 150. Printed one to a page, they make "Vertigo" a full-sized novel. They are uncommonly striking and forceful, too, and they tell the entire story.
 The story deals with the casuals of a great city: with a boy and a girl who are carried through the dim streets of industrial America by currents which they can neither understand nor cope with, and which reduce them to passive participants in a drama that is determined by forces they never see.
 The girl is a nice youngster who dreams of growing up to be a violinist. But her father, an elderly bookkeeper, loses his job when someone invents a machine to do bookkeeper's work;

"This should be the happiest day of my life, I suppose," Connie thought, standing before her dressing mirror. . . . But her reflection held no laughter.

later, standing before her dressing mirror with its array of shining, monogrammed silver. Her hand, brushing hair that curled in soft, damp, golden ringlets, stopped in mid-air as she bent forward to survey that mirrored reflection. Blue eyes that met hers challengingly, rather than eagerly; a straight little nose and firm chin that bespoke a long line of blue-blooded ancestry; coral lips that curved in an aloof little smile that held no laughter, really.
 For she might be the richest girl in the world, but she was not the happiest.
 "There is one thing money can not buy," her grandfather had told her when she was small enough to perch upon his knee. "Happiness. For how can you be happy, if you have everything?"
 Nevertheless, this wise old financier had wielded his little grandchild a fortune, the extent of which was known only to the six lawyers who were the executors in control of the purse-strings.
 How indeed? Connie wondered now, though she had not then. She wondered, too, why she should ask herself this question tonight of all nights. For Rodney Brandon, crack polo player and tennis ace, as well as heir to one of the oldest names and fortunes in the United States, was a young man any girl would be thrilled to marry.
 He had been Connie's first sweetheart, almost the only one she had had for although she was far prettier than most girls, Connie had had very few friends of either sex and only a carefully restricted number of suitors. The richest girl in the world had often been the loneliest. Behind the golden myth that was Constance Corby, underneath all the splendor and regality of legal empire, lay the somber, haunting shadow of perpetual fear. The fear of kidnapping, a dream of being murdered.
 Her childhood had been spent practically in isolation on the 6000-acre estate of Corby Farms, with its miles and miles of guarded roads and its myriad locked gates. Her education had been conducted by private tutors. She had traveled abroad extensively, but she could not walk in the streets of any American city, enter any public place, attend any social function without being trailed by private detectives.

 Bagfuls of mail were opened by her secretaries. Crank letters. People who wanted to meet her. Supplications for money. Threats. At times the deluge rose to such proportion that flight became the necessary precaution. Everywhere she went, as soon as her identity was revealed, it was necessary to move on.
 Yet the whole world knew what Constance Corby wore, with whom she danced; that she painted her toenails to match her lips and wore a gold slave anklet; how she had wept when her Irish terrier had been killed—and had had a costly tombstone put over his grave; that she liked hot-chai music; but had once asked an orchestra to play "I Love You Truly," slept in a bed that had belonged to Marie Antoinette, breakfasted from a solid-gold service, loathed publicity and photographers, and that she would, eventually, marry Rodney Brandon.
 Rodney was tall and bronzed and blond. There was an air of breeding and distinction about him. He said now, coming to meet Connie at the door of the long, curving stairway, bowing a mock servility, "Your humble henchman awaits with impatience that is now rewarded. You look more beautiful than I have ever seen you—if that's possible, darling. May I claim this first dance?"
 So that Connie, smiling down on him, wondered further why her heart did not quicken, her pulses stir, why she did not feel a flood of happiness as he took her in his arms and spun her onto the polished floor.
 "Perhaps, in the future than you realize. Perhaps, in order to have Betty look nice for her visit to Aunt Anne's, you have emude her a lovely coat with hat to match. There was that piece of fur to trim them, that cost you the price of the new dress you were saving for. Betty looks lovely, as you both start off, and you are so proud of her. You forget that your own clothes are not quite up to standard, only you also hope that Anne won't be giving one of her trunks. In that case, you will just have to do the best you can."
 Living to Sacrifice
 You want no one's sympathy, and you don't need it. The effect of Betty's new outfit, what with new shoes, gloves and even her own fitted bag, is all the thrill you crave. You are living in your girl and you would rather have her looking well than have things yourself.
 Perhaps you say unthinkingly, "I hope there won't be anything going on, because I have nothing to wear," and Betty hastens to add that you always look lovely. Children become accustomed to mothers doing without, and although they like to see them fixed up, they also grow indifferent to replenishing.
 One won't hurt, or twice, or even offer, for such an occurrence. But in time won't Betty get the idea that

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

Giving to Mothers Is Good Habit for Child to Form.
 Mother, you want your children to have the best there is, and you will go to any extent almost to give them their chance. If you did not feel this way about it, you would be different from your sisters, indeed.
 But did it ever occur to you that what is an obvious kindness, sometimes lives to prove otherwise? This anxiety of yours to give the children all they can possibly have reaches further than you think.
 he tries to kill himself, succeeds only in blinding himself, and the girl's dream fades in a lark labyrinth of poverty and defeat.
 The boy has his little dream, too; but the ups and downs of the economic world toss him in a blanket and shake the dream out of him. He drifts from place to place a lost and bewildered soul, and when at last he manages to make a little stake of a few dollars, he and the girl are so beaten, so robbed at their high hopes, that the only thing that suggests itself is a trip to Coney Island and a ride on a roller coaster. On this not-entirely-successful bit of symbolism the book ends.
 Mr. Ward has opened a new field with this book, and all things considered he has done an excellent job. "Vertigo" is well worth looking at for more reasons than the mere fact that it is a novelty.

Richest Girl in the World

BY ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
 CONSTANCE CORBY—heroine; richest girl in the world.
 RODNEY BRANDON—heret; bridge builder.
 KATIE BLYN—Connie's "double".

Yesterday, Constance Corby, on the eve of her announcement party, is the richest girl in the world. She reflects on this as she whirls out on the dance floor with her fiance, Rodney Brandon.

CHAPTER II
 "AND now that everyone's drunk a toast to our happiness and you've danced until your pretty silver slippers must be worn through, when are you going to marry me?" Rodney asked. He had persuaded Connie to slip away to the little summer house that often served as a rendezvous when they wanted a few moments alone.
 "When?" Connie murmured.
 "When," Rodney repeated. "You can't expect me to want to wait much longer, darling. In fact I can't see any reason now for waiting at all."
 Connie tilted her head to one side, regarding him. "You manage to sound like the impatient lover, Rodney—almost. Somehow, you don't make it quite convincing. For my part I can't see any reason to hurry."

From the marquee the low music of a languid waltz floated out to them, mingling with the soft shush-shush of the surf pounding against the wall. A night for romance, surely; the stage all set, the characters in costume. Yet—was romance missing?

"You're not going to keep putting me off now, I hope," Rodney bent toward her, smiling. He was seldom ruffled, seldom angry. He was too poised; one might have said, too perfect. Just as he was almost too handsome in his impeccable dinner jacket.

Connie shrugged her lovely shoulders. Sometimes she wished Rodney would get angry. It would make life more exciting. What fun was it to quarrel, if the other person never would fight back? She said, "I'll marry you next year, or tomorrow. What difference will it make? Things will just go on the same, anyway."

Rodney laughed. "That's not too flattering to my male vanity. But as I've told you, I'll take you on any terms, my dear. I'm such a lucky beggar to get you." He took her hand in his. "Would you really marry me tomorrow, darling?"
 "Why not?" Connie asked.
 He said, "I wish I could believe you."

"You could, perhaps, if you'd make me believe myself . . . What's that?" She threw back her head, listening. There had been a sound in the vines on the wall, or from the trees overhead, that must have been more than the wind sighing.

RODNEY said he had not heard anything. He said, "You see. Already you're trying to elude the issue at hand. Tomorrow it will be the same. It's taken me all my life even to make you announce our engagement. I wish I could make you . . ."
 "I know I heard something,"

Suddenly there was a flash of blinding light. A voice said, "Hold it!" A man had slipped up the stairs toward them.

Connie interrupted. "Perhaps we should go back." She got to her feet. He jumped to his. He put his arms around her.

"Don't go—not quite yet," he pleaded. She did not resist him. Yet there was no response in her arms or on her lips.

Suddenly there was a loud report; a flash of blinding light. A voice said, "Hold it!" A man had slipped up the stairs toward them.

The man laughed. "I scaled the wall. Quite a feat, let me assure you, Miss Corby. But it was worth it."

"How did you get in here?" Connie asked sharply. She pushed Rodney away; her blue eyes smoldered.

"Rodney!" Connie whirled on him. "Aren't you going to do something?"
 "What can I do?" Rodney gave her his slow smile.

 "Oh, come now! You wouldn't have him do that, Miss Corby." Nevertheless the cameraman began to edge away.

"Wouldn't it! Nothing would give me more pleasure. We posed a dozen or more times, gave out interviews so that you'd let us alone . . . Can't a person have any privacy at any time any where?"

"Not when she's the richest girl in the world, Miss Corby." The cameraman laughed again, said he was sorry. He put his hand on the wall. He could hoist himself over it, manage the sheer drop to the beach; but how he ever had scaled it, especially keeping his camera intact, remained a puzzle. "Aren't you going to do something?" Connie demanded of Rodney once more.

HE did not seem to resent the intrusion. "Oh, let the fellow have the picture. He's earned it. Though you'd better get going now," Rodney addressed the photographer, "or I'll have to summon the guards."

"That won't be necessary," the man returned. He tipped his hat to Connie, said, "Thanks!" again before he disappeared over the side of the wall.

"I hope he breaks his neck," Connie said, fiercely. Her hands were clenched at her sides. "As for you," the fire in her eyes had not abated as she turned them on Rodney, "I hope I never see you again!" She swept him out of her way, when he would have stopped her, broke into a run.

Rodney did not pursue her, though. He did call after her, shook his head, still smiling. One never knew what Connie would do next. Melt in his arms one moment, run from him the next.

But she would run back. She had always come back. The only thing to do was to humor her. Give her time.

But that was where he made his mistake.

Paradoxical as it might seem, Connie was tired of being humored, of having her own way. She was tired of everything in her glamorous golden world. Sick to the soul of it, as she had suddenly discovered earlier that same evening, as she discovered anew now, flung across the magnificent big four-postered bed, with its silk hangings and hand-made lace spread, that had belonged to the lovely and mad Marie Antoinette, shaking with rags that tore through her whole body, that came from anger or sorrow, temper or pity, she did not know which.

She only knew that she would not marry Rodney Brandon now if he were the last man on earth. She had meant it when she said that she never wanted to see him again.

Patmos All-Stars to Play Magnolia

College Cage Team to Appear at Patmos Friday Night

The Patmos All-Stars, coached by Homer Reeves, will meet the Magnolia College A. & M. cage team at Patmos Friday night, January 7. A large crowd is expected to witness the battle.
 The Patmos All-Stars lost but one game this season, dropping that game to an independent team of Hope.
 An effort is being made to match games with the junior and senior boys and a game for the senior girls of Patmos High School for that night.

Razorbaks Are Ready for Texas Cage Tour

FAYETTEVILLE—Ten University of Arkansas basketball players, accompanied by Coach Glen Rose, will leave for Texas Thursday afternoon for their first conference games with Texas A. & M. at College Station, Texas, Friday and Saturday nights, and Rice Institute at Houston Tuesday and Wednesday nights.
 The Arkansas team has hopes of winning three and possibly all of the games on the trip. Coach Rose said the games are "all-important" to the Razorbacks, who would be out of the conference race if they lost three, and who would have trouble regaining prestige if they split the series.
 Composing the squad making the trip will be Capt. Don Lockard, Nell Martin, Ray Hamilton, Jack Robbins and Harold Brady, the probable starters, and Lembo Chambers, Wilfred Thorpe, John Daudson, Leslie H. good and Glenn Smith, reserves.

Successor to Perry to Be Named Soon

HOT SPRINGS—Dewell Jackson, chairman of the Athletic Committee of the Hot Springs School Board, said Wednesday night that a successor to Meyer Perry, high school coach, probably would be selected at the meeting of the board January 12.

Perry has announced that he does not intend to coach the football team next season, although he left the way open for the School Board to employ him as athletic director.

Ferry tendered his resignation during the football season, but the School Board refused to accept it.
 It is reported that "Red" Swaim, coach of the champion Hot Springs Junior High School football team, and "Bo" Sherman of Arkansas A. & M. College will be considered, among others, as Perry's successor.

Meyer Reconsiders to Sign T. C. U. Contract

FORT WORTH, Texas—Dan Rogers, chairman of the Texas Christian University Athletic Committee, said Wednesday night Coach Leo (Dutch) Meyer of the Frogs had agreed to sign a five-year contract to remain at T. C. U.

Rogers told the annual Texas Christian grid banquet that although a new contract had not been drawn up, terms had been agreed upon.

Meyer said earlier in the week he was considering an "attractive offer" to go to the University of Mississippi as coach.

STORIES IN STAMPS

City of Columbus
 FOUNDED

THREE large ships and 14 crews availed themselves of the bay of Cadiz on the morning of Sept. 25, 1493, ready to carry Columbus on his second voyage to the New World.

On Nov. 2 the fleet touched the Lesser Antilles, sailed on to discover Puerto Rico and on Nov. 27 arrived at La Navidad, Hispaniola, where Columbus had left a garrison with 39 men 10 months before. But there was no garrison now; only ruin and silence and the marks of death where the natives had attacked.

So, abandoning the scene, Columbus sailed "10 leagues east of Monte Christi" and there, in a new harbor, began the founding of a new city, Isabella. And while his men laid its foundations, Columbus sent some ships back to Spain, others in further exploration. But sickness broke out, there was want, and before the year ended, mutiny struck the settlement.

The next year saw further exploration of the Caribbean, of Cuba and Jamaica, during which Columbus faced grave illness, war with the natives and intrigue among his men. In March, 1496, a length he returned to Spain.

Isabella today is quite overgrown with forest, on the pillars of a church and part of the residence of a Columbus descendant. Its founding is shown on an 1893 S. A. L. v. stamp.

Here is an unusual overhead action shot at the mouth of the net as Jim Fowler helps Goalie Walter Broda of Toronto make a save in the third period of the Maple Leafs' 3-0 victory over the Americans at Madison Square Garden. ## Waste No Tears

Upon the blotted record of lost years, But turn the leaf, and smile, oh smile, to see
The fair white pages that remain for thee.
Prate not of thy repentance. But believe
The spark divine dwells in thee; let it grow.
That which the upreaching spirit can achieve
The grand and all creative forces know;
They will assist and strengthen as the light
Lifts up the acorn to the oak tree's height.
Thou hast but to resolve, and lo! God's whole
Great universe shall fortify thy soul.

The Bay View Reading club held its initial meeting for the New Year on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fanny Garrett on West Second street, with Mrs. J. A. Henry as joint hostess. Mrs. Hugh Smith presided, opened the meeting and the minutes of the previous meeting were read by the Secretary, Mrs. V. A. Hammonds. Roll call responses were contemporary American musicians. In the absence of the leader, Mrs. Fred K. Harrison, Mrs. Smith presented the afternoon's program on American Musicians with Mrs. R. M. LaGrone discussing the life of Carrie Jacobs Bond, known and loved as song writer, presenting Mrs. Frank Watkins in Mrs. Bond's best loved song, "A Perfect Day" with Mrs. John Wellborn at the piano. Mrs. John Arnold gave most interesting facts pertaining to the life of Grace Moore, Metropolitan Opera singer, telling of the many obstacles she overcame in becoming one of the world's greatest singers. Dr. Etta Clamph discussed the life of Mary Louise Curtis Bok of The Curtis Institute of Music, Philadelphia, Pa. Mrs. Smith closed the program with a very interesting article on the Arkansas Musician, Lillian Hughes, cannot be given to the program committee on this year's study as each program seems to rise in information and interest. The next meeting will be held on January 19th, with Mrs. John S. Gibson and Mrs. Ada Swicegood as hostesses and Contemporary American Artists will be discussed. Following the program the hostesses served a most tempting salad course with coffee.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Bryant are spending the next two months wintering in San Antonio, Texas.

Mrs. John W. Sykes, who has spent the past few weeks visiting with Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Finley left Thursday for her home in Corpus Christi, Tex.

E. C. Robertson and son William, left Wednesday night for Springfield, Mo., where they will join Mrs. Robertson at the bedside of her mother, Mrs. Robert Burrows who is seriously ill in the hospital of that city.

Mrs. Jack Meek and daughter Caroline who have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. K. G. Molae for the past week left Thursday for their home in Bradley, Ark. They were accompanied by Miss Charlotte Stuart of Hot Springs.

The Hope Chapter No. 328 O. E. S. will hold its regular meeting at the Masonic hall at 7:30 Wednesday night. Installation of officers for the new year will be held. Full attendance is desired.

Farm Meeting at Fulon Planned Friday Night

A farm meeting will be held at Fulon School Friday, January 7, at 7 p. m., according to an announcement by Clifford L. Smith, county agent. Several interesting motion picture film strips will be shown in connection with the meeting. The latest information on the outlook for all crops grown in Hempstead county will be discussed by the County Agent and Home Demonstration Agent. It is very important that we know at this time what the outlook for the crops is in order that we may know how to plan for the year 1938.

The time has come when labor must exercise its rights to organize.—John L. Lewis.

Subtle Blends in Flavoring Enhance Inexpensive Meat Cuts

If there is a crimp in the family food budget the secret may remain yours if you study the art of flavoring. Stock your pantry with herbs and condiments and blend them wisely when you order a cheaper cut of meat. You'll find the result will often prove more inviting than a far more costly dish. Here are ways to create dishes with a "dash."

Breast of Veal
3 to 4 pound breast of veal
1/2 cup fat
1 onion sliced
1 tablespoon paprika
Tame or sage
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

4 cups bread crumbs
1/2 cup sliced carrots
1/2 cup sliced onions
Veal stock

Have meat boned and a pocket made for the stuffing. Wash and wipe well. Prepare the stuffing in the following manner:

Cook onion in fat 5 minutes; add paprika, a bit of thyme or sage, parsley and mix with the soft bread crumbs. Fill the pocket and tie or skewer the opening. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place meat on rack in roasting pan, rub surface with fat, sprinkle with flour and put a slice of bacon across the top. Four 1 cup

Cheap Houses Are

Just to prove the FSA was not fooling the big harvest, the FSA built a six-room house in a rural section of Minnesota for $314 a room. It wasn't quite so fancy as the Arkansas house but almost equally roomy and would shed snow.

Cheaper in South
Of course the $2,372 house in Altheimer and the $1,885 house in Minnesota were not built according to the farmer's orders. They were built on a design carefully worked out by the FSA. Each was one of a number of houses in a resettlement project, mass production in a limited way. A portable sawmill was hauled up to the site of the community and it cut rafters, joists, flooring and shingles according to a pattern. Then a foreman took over, got a couple of farmers and nailed the houses together atop a concrete foundation.

FSA says the houses are sound, will last many years and give good service. Altogether, 10,363 houses have been started by FSA and approximately half are finished.

As a matter of fact, the two houses mentioned above are high priced jobs. In the deep south where less weather-proof structures are required, costs are far less. A five-room house at Bishopville, South Carolina, has been built with sink, grease trap, electric wiring and sewage disposal, all for $1,362. That is $273 a room.

stock in bottom of the pan and cook in a hot oven 15 minutes. Reduce heat to moderate and cook for at least 1 1/2 hours longer. Baste often, adding more stock as needed. When half done add carrots and onions. To serve remove meat and vegetables to platter and make gravy, using stock made from trimmings. (Stock: Cover trimmings from boned veal with cold water, add a bay leaf, sliced onion, celery tops, sprig of parsley, few peppercorns and some salt. Simmer 1 1/2 hour or more.)

Sausage Prune Loaf
1 1/2 cups uncooked prunes
1 1/2 pounds pork sausage
1 large sweet green pepper cut fine
2 1/2 cups cooked rice
3 or 4 stalks celery
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
salt and pepper to taste
2 eggs

Wash prunes in hot water, drain, cut from the pits and put through food chopper. Fry sausage meat, green pepper and celery until sausage is cooked but not crisp. If the sausage is extra fat, fat should be drained off after frying. Add prunes, rice, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper, slightly beaten eggs and mix well. Pack in a large loaf pan or casserole and bake 40 minutes in a moderate oven. Reduce temperature and continue baking for 25 minutes.

Beef Stew With Dumplings
2 pounds beef
2 tablespoons shortening
1 large onion, chopped
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon celery salt
1/4 teaspoon thyme leaves
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 cup water
1 cup Worcestershire sauce
2 cups canned tomatoes
1 cup diced carrots

Cut the beef in 1-inch squares and brown on both sides in a hot frying pan. Cook the onion in the melted shortening until soft and add to the browned beef. Add the water, seasoning and the tomatoes. Cover and cook over low heat until the meat is tender, about 2 hours. Add carrots during last half hour of cooking. To make dumplings: Use 1 cup sifted flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon poultry seasoning and salt.

We, the Women

By Ruth Millett

A Career Woman's Success Is Founded on Sincerity.

There are women in business who look beyond this week's pay check. Women who are as anxious as most men to succeed. Women who are not working just as fill-in between school and a hoped-for marriage, but who plan to build their lives around a career.

They are the women who should be interested in what Countess Waldeck has to say to women in business. Countess Waldeck has made a study of business women, both in the United States and in Europe. All the successful business women that she has come to know have convinced her of this: The woman who becomes a successful executive must really like and respect people. She must not feign the kind of unthinking liking that most of us have when we are young, but the kind of liking that comes from real understanding and sincere sympathy for others' troubles and perplexities. The more important a woman's work becomes, says Countess Waldeck, the more she has to have this real consideration for people that comes from the heart.

What about the office "front" that we are always hearing about? Countess Waldeck thinks the woman who falls back on a superficial office manner to get her through her days, is limiting herself at the start. "I can't make up my mind about what is worse," she says. Is it the blasé girl or executive who looks at the customer like a Hollywood duchess?

Add 1 1/2 cup milk gradually and stir well mixed. Remove some of the gravy if it covers the meat. Drop the dough by teaspoonsful on the boiling stew. Cover and cook at the simmering point without removing the cover for 15 minutes. Test dumplings before removing.

John Tucker Considered for Southwestern Post

LITTLE ROCK—John Tucker, former University of Alabama football player and athletic director and coach at Arkansas Tech at Russellville since 1932, is being seriously considered to succeed Clyde (Shorty) Probst as director of athletics at Southwestern University at Memphis it was learned Wednesday night.

Tucker conferred with Southwestern officials at Memphis Wednesday.

and who seems to say, "I am much too good to be bothered with your troubles. Who do you think you are?" Or is it the business woman with the office front, who wears that superficial varnish of sweetness and light in business hours, but whose innate hardness, lack of interest, and emptiness break through everywhere?"

Such advice as Countess Waldeck gives may sound a little old-fashioned to a girl determined to be a "modern young business woman," so to give it weight with even the most modern, let me add—the Countess isn't the dowager type, not in any sense of the word. In fact, she looks a great deal more like Claudette Colbert than an American's idea of a countess. Now are you willing to think her message might be for you?

Cozy Dinette Features "Intimate" Lighting

Resembling a hanging kerosene lamp, this fixture is really the latest in scientific lighting. Its inner translucent diffusing bowl provides soft, glareless illumination.

By Jean Prentice
THERE'S a way to make your breakfast nook or dinette more individual and cozy. It has to do with lighting.
In many apartments and homes the dinette is a part of the kitchen, and it is difficult to make it seem a separate, distinctive section. Usually the lighting fixture above the table hugs the ceiling and gives a far-away feeling.
Try substituting a drop cord with a new fixture placed about 36 inches above the table. I think it will add an intimacy and charm that you want. It is also better lighting from the scientific angle, since it gives a greater distribution and amount of light on the table.
Even a small breakfast table, like a family-sized one, needs a fixture hanging reasonably close to it to provide tranquil, cheerful lighting. I suggest that if you have a breakfast nook with a lighting fixture close to the ceiling you make this change and see what a difference it makes.

Several types of fixtures go very nicely here, and you needn't delve very deeply into the family purse for one of them either.
Smart Colonial Design
In quaint design, looking much like a hanging kerosene lamp, is one fixture which in reality is the latest in scientific lighting. It has an inner translucent diffusing bowl which prevents the light from glaring harshly down into the eyes of persons seated at the table. When a 75 or 100-watt bulb is used the light is still soft, yet abundant enough for reading or sewing or game-playing.
Another idea for the breakfast nook is an inexpensive parchment cylinder shade, closed at the bottom to soften shadows.
If you already have a drop cord and ordinary downward shade in your dinette, you can still improve the lighting by using one of the new bulbs with a silver bowl, in 100-watt size. This will throw the light upward, and give a smooth, glareless, soft effect.

Will Lead Ford Fight on NLRB

He fought and defeated the NRA in the famous Schechter case, and now the Ford Motor Co. has engaged Frederick Wood, New York attorney, above, to lead Ford's court battle against the National Labor Relations Board. The NLRB is expected to ask the U. S. Circuit Court for an order sustaining the board's recent decision demanding Ford cease anti-union activity and reinstate 29 discharged employees.

Making Sure That New Year Brings Your Just Desserts

Early in the new year, something sweet should happen to you. Try this smooth and perfect pie made of sweet potato, molasses and nuts. It's a January blessing without any disguise.

Creole Sweet Potato Pie
(8 inch pie)

One and one-half cups cooked or canned sweet potatoes, 1/3 cup brown sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 3 tablespoons New Orleans molasses, 3 egg yolks, 1 cup milk, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1/2 cup chopped walnuts, 3 egg whites.

Mix sweet potatoes until free of lumps. Add sugar, salt, cinnamon and molasses. Beat yolks and add. Then add milk and melted butter. Add walnuts and mix well. Beat egg whites until stiff and dry and fold into mixture. Pour into pastry lined pie pan. Bake in hot oven 145 degrees F. for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to moderate 135 degrees F. and bake another 30 minutes or longer until pie is firm.

Home-Made Bread Has Good Flavor

To Get Better Results Use an Earthen Mixing Bowl

Bread tastes best when it has just been taken out of the oven, when it has that distinct "home flavor." So for that reason why not treat the family occasionally with home-made loaves.

You will get best results if you use an earthen mixing bowl, as it retains warmth better than thinner bowls. Do not measure the flour until it has been sifted once, and then remember to re-sift it twice as the sifting lightens the flour and separates the grains.

The ingredients needed are the following:

1 cup of Quaker Oats
2 teaspoonfuls of salt
2 cups of boiling water
1/2 cup of sugar
1 cake yeast
1/4 cup lukewarm water
5 cups of Quaker flour

Four boiling water over Quaker Oats, mixed with salt and sugar. When this is lukewarm, add yeast dissolved in lukewarm water, then add the sifted flour. Knead slightly and let rise in a warm place for about two hours. Knead, form into two loaves, put in pans, let rise and bake about 50 minutes.

One and one-half cups ground mixed nuts, 3 tablespoons sugar, pinch salt, 1 cup cream, 4 bananas, whole nuts.

Mix nuts and sugar together in 8-inch pie plate. Press this mixture with fingers against the pie plate. Add salt to cream, then whip. Slice 3 bananas and mix with 3/4 of the whipped cream. Fill shell with this mixture. Chill in refrigerator for three hours. Garnish with remaining cream and the other bananas, sliced. Dot with whole nuts just before serving.

It's easy to get up in the morning when the griddle is hot. The rising roll will sound like music on a frosty morning if breakfast is to consist of a "stack of wheats" with a sweet river of syrup.

Rice Griddle Cakes
(4 to 6 servings)

One and one-half cups cooked rice, 2 eggs, 1/4 cups milk, 1/2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 3 squares chocolate, 1 cup chopped Brazil nuts.

Cream butter and sugar together. Beat egg, then stir into mixture. Add vanilla. Mix flour, bread crumbs, baking powder and salt. Add alternately with the milk to first mixture. Blend in melted chocolate. Add nuts. Pour into buttered mold, cover lightly and steam for exactly 2 hours. Serve with whipped cream.

Nut Banana Cream Pie

One and one-half cups cornmeal, 1/2 cup flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 tablespoon molasses, 1 egg, 1 cup milk, 1/2 cup water, 1 tablespoon melted butter.

Mix all dry ingredients well together. Beat egg, add molasses, milk and water. Add all to dry ingredients. Beat well. Lastly add melted butter. Drop by spoonfuls on hot griddle. Serve with crisp bacon and syrup.

On a very cold day in the country, old-fashioned buckwheat cakes make a big hit.

Buckwheat Cakes
(4 to 6 servings)

One and one-half cups boiling water, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons molasses, 3/4 yeast cake, 6 tablespoons lukewarm water, 1/2 cups buckwheat flour, 6 tablespoons white flour, 3/4 teaspoon soda.

Mix boiling water, salt and molasses. Dissolve yeast in lukewarm water and add to above mixture when it is cool. Add flour gradually and beat well. Let stand overnight in a warm place. In morning add soda and beat well. Drop by spoonfuls on hot griddle. Serve with honey or syrup.

Ford Defies Nat'l Labor Board; Will Not Obey "Order"

Won't Change Co. Attitude Toward United Auto Workers

FREE SPEECH ISSUE

Company Says It Is Being Penalized for Mr. Ford's Words

DETROIT, Mich.—(AP)—The Ford Motor company, assailing findings of the National Labor Relations Board as "unjustified by the facts and unsupported by the evidence," announced Wednesday night that it would not comply with certain orders of the board which held it guilty of violating the Wagner act.

The company's statement, replying to the board's order that it "cease and desist" from certain practices, reinstate 29 discharged employees and post notices of compliance in its Dearborn and Highland Park (Mich.) plants, was issued after its petition for rehearing of the NLRB complaint was denied in Washington by the board Wednesday.

NLRB officials said they would ask a federal Circuit Court of Appeals for an order to enforce the board's ruling, but were undecided when or where the action would be instituted.

"Not Given Consideration"

In seeking a rehearing, the Ford

Company contended that the NLRB had not considered several relevant factors—including the General Motors and Chrysler sit-down strikes—in making its decision. The firm maintained that the board had based its finding on testimony that was partly hearsay and that the company had been given no opportunity to examine the NLRB examiner's report to the board.

The Ford response was signed by P. E. Martin, company vice president. Making no reference to compliance or non-compliance with four sections of the board's order, the Ford company renewed its denial that it was guilty of law violations alleged in those sections.

The board had ordered the company to "cease and desist" from: Discouraging membership in the United Automobile Workers by discharging union members; from dominating the Ford Brotherhood of America, Inc., another union; from maintaining "vigilante" or similar groups to intimidate employees; and from interfering with union members distributing literature in the vicinity of the Dearborn plant.

Right of Free Speech
Of another order, that the company "desist" from "disseminating among its employees statements or propaganda disparaging or criticizing labor organizations or advising its employees not to join such organizations," the Ford response said it "appears to be predicated upon the views of Mr. Henry Ford as expressed in his statements, and added:

"Mr. Ford in so expressing himself was exercising his right of free speech guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States, with which the board has no authority to interfere, as it has attempted to do in its order."

The company advised the board it would not comply with the "cease and desist" order in this respect.
The company refused to reinstate 29 employees who the board charged were dismissed for union activity, to reimburse them for loss of pay, to post notices of compliance with the board's order and to maintain the notices for 60 days.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day of about 3 pounds of waste.
If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Authentic colonial atmosphere and architecture, reminiscent of the days when Washington was leading the struggling colonies toward freedom, will mark the magnificent Court of the State Buildings where the various states and territories will show their natural advantages and industrial achievements at the New York World's Fair 1939. ## BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON—Echoes of the rebellion which rang out in the House as the dilapidated wage-hour bill was hoveled into its tomb will reverberate for a long time to come.

This issue has all the earmarks of one of those tormenting problems which continues to plague Congress until the "reformers" agitating it finally get some legislation on the books. Furthermore, it has shaped up as a sectional economic struggle, with northern and southern groups bitterly arrayed against each other.

Whether any bill will come out of the forth-coming session is doubtful, but the fact that the issue is no dead duck is also attested by the narrow margin in the House vote to recommend the labor committee bill. A switch of 10 votes could have saved it.

Something Must Be Done
It is important to note that nothing has been done about wages and hours and child labor, and that nearly everyone, not to mention the Democratic

Children Work Long Hours

Work-weeks of 50 to 60 hours, and wages of less than $4 a week have been found "common" among child laborers. A six-state survey showed nearly a fourth of employed children under 16 on a 60-hour or longer week, and nearly a fifth of them earning less than $2 for a week's work. Child labor appeared to increase about 130 per cent in 1936 over 1925.

When business was much better earlier this year, the Bureau of Labor Statistics estimated that about one-third of full-time wage and salary workers were not getting enough money to "buy the bare minimum necessities of life."

That's why another federal survey found about 15 per cent of relief cases to be those of full-time workers whose pay checks had to be supplemented, the effect being to subsidize low-wage manufacturers. In Pennsylvania, the grants-in-aid-of-wages relief cases were

So They Say

The attainment of durable peace is not a matter of desire and hope rather than a reality.—Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

There's nothing the President can do to help matters so long as some of the business men in this country are determined to believe that nothing the President does will be beneficial.—Joseph P. Kennedy.

We could not honor our own convictions very highly if we refuse to test them from time to time by contrary opinion or doctrine.—Dr. Dixon Ryan Fox, New York City.

We simply cannot legislate for classes in the United States without hurting some other classes.—U. S. Senator Walter F. George, Georgia.

Cards Buy American Ass'n. Batting Champ

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Einos Slaughter, 21, outfielder with the Columbus Red Birds, who led American Association hitting last year, was purchased by the St. Louis Cardinals for an unannounced sum.

Slaughter, left-handed batter, hit .382 for the Cardinals farm. He is strictly a "chain game" product, coming up via Martinsville, Va., and Columbus, Ga., both Cardinals farms, since 1935. He possibly will replace Outfielder Don Padgett, whom the Cardinals plan to convert to a catcher.

BARBS

Advices say Japan sank the Panay just to get America's "reaction." Could that be Japanese for "good"? Some business men complain that all they are getting out of the New Deal breathing spell is just another term in the iron lung.

Pictures show how Ethiopian tribesmen burned two Italian planes and their occupants. This is the contemporary style of beauty recommended by Young Mr. Mussolini.

Nobody could kick at an occasional tax boost, but Congress apparently hasn't been told how high is up.

A committee checking over the war poems of the Japanese empress have decided that what the verses lack is rhyme and reason.

A "wreck" is staged along the highways of England at dangerous spots to serve as a warning to careless drivers.

Beware Coughs That Hang On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm. Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

Will He Bid $10.00 or $40.00?

Fletcher Valentine knows tobacco values...like so many other independent experts he smokes Luckies!

"I've bought 4,000,000 pounds of tobacco at auctions in the past ten years," says Mr. Valentine, independent buyer of Westfield, N. C., "and my bread and butter depends on making the right bids. That's why I have to know tobacco values."

"Now I've smoked Luckies ever since 1918, and the reason is, they suit my taste to a 'T'. Nobody knows better than we tobacco men that Luckies are made of the finest center-leaf tobacco."

Yes—and that isn't all...Luckies' exclusive process, "It's Toasted" takes out certain irritants naturally present in all tobacco—even the finest! The result is that you will find Luckies not only taste good but are easy on your throat.

Surely, independent experts like Mr. Valentine make good judges of cigarettes...Sworn records show that, among independent tobacco experts, Luckies have twice as many exclusive smokers as have all other cigarettes combined!
